U.S. BUSINESS LEADERS HELP MR. ROOSEVELT

Strengthen Recovery Administration.

OIL MAGNATE RESIGNS HIS DIRECTORATE

Washington, To-day.

The United States National Recovery Administration has been strengthened by the appointment to the Industrial Advisory of the Administration Board Mr. James Moffett, who has resigned his Directorate of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey to support the campaign. Mr. Henry Harriman, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce and Mr. R. L. Lund, President of the Manufacturers' Association.—Reuter.

ROOSEVELT'S "TEMPORARY COUNCIL"

Washington.

President Franklin D. Roosevelt has created a temporary super-cabinet, including heads of the various emergency organizations in addition to the regular cabinet. The super-cabinet will meet weekly, supplanting the regular cabinet session.

Mr. Frank C. Walker, it was announced, will be executive secretary of the enlarged cabinet, which will be known as "Temporary Council." Members include: Mrs. Lewis Douglas, director of the budget.

Mrs. Lewis Douglas, director of the budget. Mr. Jesse H. Jones, head of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Mr. Henry Morgenthau, head of the federal farm credit administration.

U.S. EMPLOYERS REBUFFED

Organised Labour Reject New Code.

WORKERS SUPPORTED BY GEN. JOHNSON

Washington, To-day.

Organised labour won the first round of the struggle to thrust out a National Recovery Code for the steel industry at yesterday morning's hearing before the administrator, Brigadier-General Hugh Johnson.

The employers, who are traditionally opposed to the independent organisation of labour by outside bodies such as the United States Federation of Labour, submitted a Code specifically providing for a "Company Union" system, under which the workers of each Company will be organised under Company officials.

U.S. WEATHER VAGARIES.

Heat Wave In East And Middle West.

40 DEATHS FROM HEAT.

New York, To-day. A terrific heat wave, accompanied by lightning and wind-storms has accounted for 40 deaths in the East and the Middle West, 10 of which occurred in New York. The temperature rose to 100 deg. in the shade and 141 deg. in the sun, the highest for 15 years.

This was in sharp contrast to Montana, which has been gripped by a cold wave.—Reuter.

Scenes at Pendine Sands, South Wales, where Mr. and Mrs. James Mollison waited for favourable weather conditions before taking off on their flight to New York. Mr. and Mrs. Mollison (standing by the tail of their plane, Senfarrer) expressing their thanks at the reception accorded them at Pendine. (S. & G.)

SUTCLIFFE NOT TO PLAY IN LAST TEST

Marriott, Bakewell and Nichols Selected.

FORMIDABLE ATTACK AGAINST WEST INDIES

London, To-day.

Herbert Sutcliffe is not to play for England against the West Indies in the third Test match at the Oval a week on Saturday. He has asked to be excused on the grounds of not being quite fit.

The English selectors have made three changes in the team that played at Old Trafford. C. S. Marriott, the Kent school-master fast bowler, replaces the injured Macaulay, and Bakewell fills the vacancy left by Sutcliffe, while Nichols comes into the side in place of R. W. V. Robins.

- D. R. Jardine (Surrey) (captain)
- C. F. Walters (Worcester)
- R. E. S. Wyatt (Warwick)
- C. S. Marriott (Kent)
- Hammond (Gloucester)
- Ames (Kent)
- Langridge (Sussex)
- Verity (Yorkshire)
- Nichols (Essex)
- Clark (Northants)
- Bakewell (Northants)
- Twelfth man—Townsend (Derby).

W. INDIES FORCED TO FOLLOW ON

Woodhouse's Bowls well for Durham.

GAME ENDS IN DRAW

London, To-day.

Durham, one of the leading sides in the Minor Counties, succeeded in forcing the West Indies cricket team to follow on in their two-day game at Durham, but the game was abandoned yesterday as a draw with the tourists 87 in arrears with only 7 wickets in hand.

In spite of good bowling by V. A. Valentine, who took 5 for 73, Durham totalled 256. The West Indies fared poorly against the slow bowling of Woodhouse, who bowled unchanged, and were all out for 140. Woodhouse claiming 5 for 73. Following on 118 runs in arrears the West Indies lost 3 wickets for 29 runs before stumps were drawn.—Reuter.

KOWLOON COAL DUMP PROTEST

Residents Appoint Committee.

NO PETITION TO BE MADE TO GOVERNMENT

A preliminary meeting of property-owners and principal residents in the neighbourhood of the Blackhead Point coal-dump, was held last night, preparatory to a mass meeting of residents to be held in the Peninsula Hotel at 5.30 p.m. to-day.

The meeting drafted a number of proposals to present to the mass meeting to-day, and a small committee was appointed and empowered to draft a resolution to be submitted to the general meeting, condemning the dump as a public nuisance.

Last night's meeting was convened by Mr. J. A. Tarant, a resident, and the committee appointed comprises the following:

Mr. A. S. Sykes, representing Messrs. David and Company, property owners in the area, (Chairman), Mr. R. J. Shrigley, representing Messrs. Reiss, Massey and Company, Mr. C. E. Terry, President of the Kowloon Residents' Association, Mr. F. H. Loseby and Dr. Durran.

No intention of presenting a petition to the Governor-in-Council was expressed at the meeting.

BLOOD-STAINED AND DESERTED JUNK FOUND

Mysterious Boat Off Lamma Island.

REVENUE OFFICER DISCOVERS DRIFTING VESSEL

A deserted, blood-stained fishing junk, drifting out to sea towards Cheung Chau Island at midnight yesterday, was discovered by Revenue Officer Ward while on patrol in the Customs launch.

While cruising off Lamma Island, a large steamer passed close by, throwing the reflection of its electric lights for some distance out to sea. Revenue Officer Ward who was on the bridge of the Customs launch noticed a fishing junk with its sails fully hoisted, but without the usual regulation lights.

He came alongside and shouted to the boat but received no answer. He then boarded the junk to find it unoccupied. There was no sign of disorder on the boat, and the dishes for an evening meal were laid out on the deck. (Continued on Page 12).

WIFE AND SECRETARY ALSO IN PRISON

QUICK END TO CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE

NEW CAMPAIGN BY MARCH SUPPRESSED BY FIRM ACTION

UNCEREMONIOUSLY TAKEN FROM HIS BED AT 1.40 A.M. TO-DAY, MAHATMA GANDHI IS ONCE MORE IN GAOL. THE GOVERNMENT ACTION FOLLOWED THE MAHATMA'S DECISION, ON SUNDAY, TO VACATE ASHRAM SABARMATI TO START A "FRESH SACRED MISSION," BEGINNING WITH A MARCH OF 32 ASHRAMITES TO CANVAS SUPPORT FOR HIS NEW CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE MOVEMENT.

The Mahatma and his 32 followers, including his wife and secretary are now under lock and key.

Although in announcing his new campaign Gandhi foresaw his own arrest, he did not anticipate the arrest of the body of his March, whom he intimated, would continue without him in the event of his apprehension.

It is stated that the plans for the March were disclosed in a letter to Lord Willingdon, the viceroy of India, which requested an interview, although unaccompanied by any threat or condition.

Gaoled In Sabarmati

Ahmedabad, To-day. Mahatma Gandhi and Mrs. Gandhi were arrested here to-day at 1.40 a.m. Mr. and Mrs. Gandhi, and also Mr. Mahedavdesai, Gandhi's secretary, and the 32 Ashramites have been put in gaol at Sabarmati.—Reuter.

Awakened In Bed.

GANDHI PRAYS, THEN SURRENDERS

Ahmedabad, Later.

Gandhi was staying at the bungalow of a wealthy mill-owner, Mr. Ranchoodass when arrested. He had retired and was sleeping soundly when he was awakened by a crowd rushing into his apartment.

When the District Magistrate and the District Police Superintendent arrived with a squad of men in four motor-cars, Gandhi called the inmates together and prayed. He then surrendered.—Reuter.

16 Women In March.

OFFICIALS EXPECTED ARREST WOULD BE ORDERED.

Simla, Earlier.

It is believed in official circles that Mahatma Gandhi will be arrested this morning when he begins his March, with 32 Ashramites in order to invite co-operation in the new Civil Disobedience movement.

The March, in which Mrs. Gandhi and 15 other women will participate is planned to start from Ahmedabad, and the party will go to village of Ras in the Kaira district. The present March is something similar to the March to Dandi on March 12, 1930, when the Civil Disobedience campaign was launched with the breaking of the Salt Laws.—Reuter.

Companions May Be Released.

PAROLE CONDITIONS.

Ahmedabad, Later. It is understood that Mahatma Gandhi's companions are to be released on parole. If they commit a breach of the parole conditions they will then stand open to trial. It is worthy of note that Gandhi was arrested, on this occasion, under ordinary law, whereas he was previously in custody as a State prisoner, detained "during the Government's pleasure."—Reuter.

Indian Villages Warned By Pamphlets From Air.

BAJAURIS IGNORE DEMAND FOR AGITATORS

London, To-day.

The developments in the situation on the Northwest frontier of India are being closely watched here.

Troops are advancing from Peshawar to the support of the loyal Halanizai tribe which is threatened by neighbouring tribes of Mahmands.

Meanwhile, the demand by the Government of India for surrender by the Bajauri tribesmen of certain agitators whose conduct threatens the peace and fulfilment of international obligations, has not been complied with.

Royal Air Force aeroplanes, accordingly, have flown over Bajaur and yesterday dropped notices warning the villages of the intention to bomb certain officially fixed objectives. The aeroplanes were fired at when over the village of Klar.—British Wireless Service.

LOCAL DOLLAR UNCHANGED.

Spot Silver Down 1/16.

The local dollar remains steady at 1/4 1/4. Spot silver has fallen by 1/16 to 17 15/16, while the forward quotation remains at 18 1/16. The cross rate, London on New York, is 2-6 1/2 compared with the last quotation of 2-6 1/4, and the New York on London rate is 2-6 1/4 as against 2-6 1/4 1/2.

CHANNEL STORMS

SHIPPING DELAYED OFF ENGLISH COAST

Paddle-Steamer Caught In Gale.

ROYAL YACHT PINNACE GOES TO RESCUE

Cowes Regatta Postponed

London, To-day.

The timely assistance of the pinnace from the Royal Yacht, "Victoria and Albert," saved a number of yachts from possible serious damage, when a crowded paddle-steamer, caught by a fierce gale and strong tides, fouled a number of the smaller craft off Cowes, yesterday.

High winds and heavy seas are raging round the English coast, some interference with the shipping services, and for the first time in history, the Royal Yacht, H.M. Regatta, at Cowes has been postponed. Considerable alarm was caused yesterday when a South Coast pleasure steamer, carrying visitors to the Regatta was seen to be drifting helplessly down the roads in the teeth of the gale.

A serious collision appeared to be inevitable as the steamer approached a number of yachts riding at anchor, but although the steamer fouled several of the smaller craft, no serious damage was done.

When nearing His Majesty the King's racing yacht, "Britannia," the steamer dropped anchor, and the pinnace from the "Victoria and Albert," which is Their Majesties' headquarters during the regatta, rushed to the pleasure boat's assistance, taking some of the strain with the help of haulers. Tugs were hurriedly summoned and the steamer was later towed clear.—British Wireless Service.

LONDON'S TUBE RAILWAY

Longest Underground In The World.

LAST SECTION COMPLETED

London, To-day.

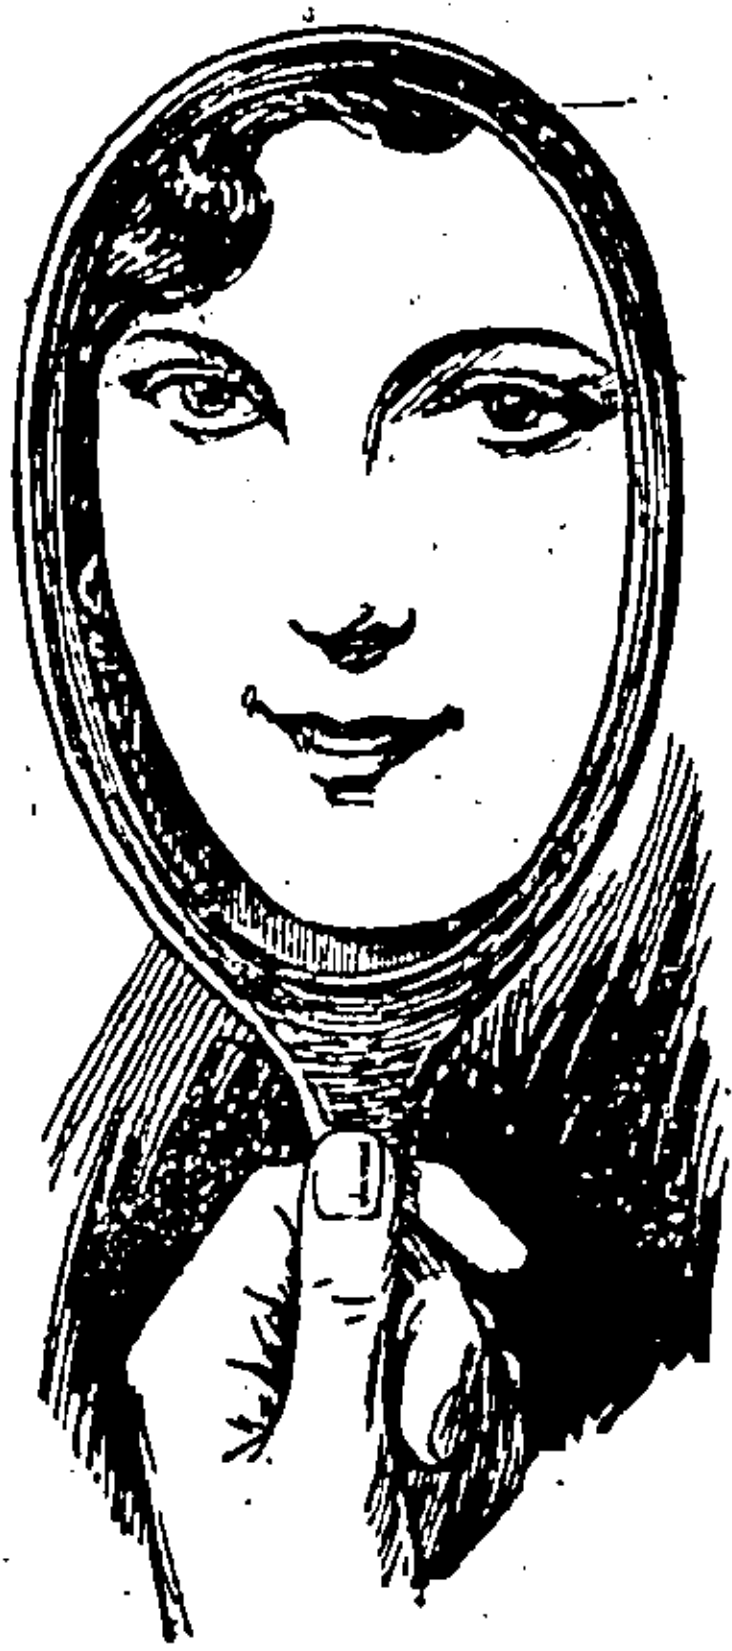

The last section of the Tube railway extension from South Harewood to Cockfosters was opened to the public yesterday. The Tube railway, which is 25 miles long, is the longest underground railway in the world.

The new addition just completed has cost about $5,000,000. On some sections the speed now attained is three miles in five minutes.

Cockfosters was formerly a rural spot, but housing estates have rapidly increased in numbers during recent years and it is estimated that the population of the neighbourhood will increase by 50,000 within the next few years.—British Wireless Service.

What To Wear For Tennis

Sun-Tan Dress Unsuitable To Hong Kong.

PLEATED SKIRTS POPULAR

"If you 'crash' on the courts this season, there is no reason why you should not do so in the most attractive frocks that we have known for some time.

Designers are using everything for this dress, from fine linen which reminds us of sheets to the coarse ones that are just like sack-cloth and are known as "crash."

Sun-tan tennis frocks, with straps crossing over behind are popular at home, but for Hong Kong and China sea-side places these would be rather trying for all but the most hardened as regards sunburn. In England, Mrs. Fearnley-Whittingstall and Miss Mary Healey are wearing the back-trapped frocks this year. A little cooler can be easily added if further protection is needed, but that again, is not too happy an idea for China.

Most of the new tennis frocks have several pleats in the skirt if they are not slit open. Mrs. Fearnley-Whittingstall and Senorita Pons, the Spanish champion, have both been playing this season in skirts that are pleated all round. One still sees the flare on some washing silk frocks, but smart linens believe in pleats.

"Sun as-you-please" backs are a blessing to tennis players here, for they button up behind, or may remain open according to glare. The back is often "envelope" shaped and can be buttoned, or left open to form a reverie. If you like to be new and amusing and very brave, you will have your frock made up in black linen with pastel hat and gloves in linen for the beach or promenade.

Black linen with white pique hat and gloves are smart, that is just now while they are fashionable. The time will surely come when such fabric gloves will be regarded as clumsy, but at the moment they are "the thing," so that now is the time to indulge, or never.

The tennis onlooker will not care to be out of the picture as regards dress, and for her frocks on similarly simple lines with arresting accessories are desirable. A sunshade, for protection in case she wears a backless frock should match her gloves and belt, and so as not to make these adjuncts too much of a good thing, the hat might be of the same material as the dress.

Menu Suggestions For To-morrow

TIFFIN

Curried Eggs
Coddish Pie
Stuffed Apple Salad
DINNER
Potato and Celery Soup
Fried Soles
Butter Sauce
Risotto
Stewed Cucumber with Sauce
Piquante
Fruit Croutons
Curried Eggs.

Hard boiled eggs; curry sauce. Boil as many eggs as are required, remove the shells and with a very sharp knife cut them in half and remove a small portion of the white at each end so that they will stand yolk upwards. Pour over them a curry sauce and serve hot.

Coddish Pie.

2 oz. Boiled macaroni; ½ lb. cooked cod (broken up finely); ½ pint milk; 1 egg (beaten); squeeze of lemon; ½ cup breadcrumbs; 1 oz. margarine; seasoning. Mix together the macaroni and fish. Add the egg and milk, lemon and seasoning. Put in a greased pie-dish, cover with breadcrumbs and small dabs of margarine. Bake 20 to 30 minutes.

Stuffed Apple Salad.
6 Large red apples; 3 tablespoons halved moist raisins; mayonnaise; 2 tablespoons chopped mixed nut meats of any kind toasted crisp; lettuce. Polish and chill the apples. Hollow to form cups and dice the apple pulp. Mix this with the raisins and nuts, add mayonnaise to blend fill the apples at once with the lettuce. Top each salad with a little mayonnaise and a sprig of parsley.

Stewed Cucumber with Sauce

Piquante.
2 Cucumbers; 2 oz. butter; pepper to taste; 1 gill water; ½ teaspoon salt; ½ pint sauce piquante. Peel and slice the cucumbers, place them in a stewpan with the other ingredients and simmer for half or three quarters of an hour, leaving the lid off the last few minutes in order that none of the liquor may remain. Serve with piquant sauce poured over and snippets of toast.

Fruit Croutons.

Plain sponge cake, about a pint of mixed fruits; stewed or fresh; ½ pint cream; fruit syrup; a few glacé cherries. Trim the cake and cut it into slices about 2 inches thick. Stamp into rounds with a cutter and with a smaller one hollow out these rounds but do not break through the sides. Soak each case with a little fruit syrup. Fill them with juice, fresh or stewed fruit, put a heap of whipped sweetened cream on top of the fruit and place a cherry in the centre.

GLOVES AND BAGS IN ORGANDIE.

Jewellery To Match Ensembles.

No doubt one of the most delightful fantasies of the summer is the organdy bag, ruffled daintily, for evening or formal afternoon wear. And, of course, in the same mood, are the gloves of organdy, both plain and matelasse, which form so charming a complement to the summer frock of fine cotton.

In the line of jewellery, interest in building accessory ensembles prevails. Bracelets are set with composition or semi-precious stones which carry out a colour note. The triple bracelet with carnelian insets, which harmonise with brown and beige accessories, is an example of what is being done in costume jewellery.

Chanel's field flower bracelets carries out the flowered pattern of her afternoon frocks, thus in one more detail giving character and interest to the ensemble.

FEATHER VOGUE FOR EVENING

Evening wraps are not immune from the feathered vogue. One of the "smartest" is a three-quarter length model of brown velvet finished with a ruche of brown ostrich feathers tipped with white, while another is a long wrap of turquoise blue velvet topped with a big roll collar of turquoise blue coque feathers.

Past Fashions Are Rediscovered

Stiff White-Satin Returns.

MEDIAEVAL WEDDING GOWNS

Many past fashions have been revived this year. Stiff white satin has been rediscovered, the kind of satin that makes a frocks with a personality all its own, which will stand independently of its wearer, and rustles and whispers excitedly as she moves. Then, after many years of obscurity, embroidery has again been used by designers, who have found how lovely this can be.

Crystal and silver stars, silver bugles (beloved of our great aunts), pearl violets, and little curly designs in silver, crystal and pearls are just a few of the patterns seen. Apart from its beauty, this fashion has also the merit of setting on its feet again the art of the embroidress, as no machine could possibly be capable of the delicate work which it calls for.

Mediaeval wedding dresses are almost a foregone conclusion nowadays, and one is rather grateful to see variations on this theme. Empire styles suit petite brides, with little high bodices, and straight, closely moulded skirts, and tiny puff sleeves.

Of course, puff sleeves of all kinds are seen on wedding dresses now, from the shoulder puff to the leg o'mutton, which is very flattering to the girl with wide, rather square shoulders, and a small waist.

Long, straight sleeves are also seen, usually ending in a point over the back of the hand, and these are more becoming to the older women, for whom puffs are too youthful.

Bedroom Harmony.

Bedroom suites, in contrast with the heavier wood or metal used for other rooms, have stippled wood with bright green flecks on a cream ground. When the bedstead is of painted metal, garlands of spring flowers are painted along the centre of the bedrails.

BRIDGE NOTES TRIANGLE CONTRACT

The official International Laws of Contract Bridge make no provision for three players although there are numerous occasions when three players only are available both at clubs and in private play. We all have experienced the fourth who falls at the last moment when it is too late to replace him. Apart, however, from necessity, there are some people who prefer Triangle Bridge to the ordinary game.

The first and original form of Bridge, indeed, was started as a three-handed affair, and that was really the reason for the introduction of Dummy—a fact of which younger players are probably unaware. Both at old Bridge and at Auction the triangle became popular. Three-handed Auction, known as "Cut Throat," degenerated into a wild gamble for Dummy. The players were all against all and bid to secure Dummy's hand, with no knowledge of its contents. The highest bidder became the Declarer, the other two being temporary partners against him. Skill and discretion do come in at "Cut Throat," but bluff bids may succeed, as Dummy may always come to the rescue.

Attempts have been made to play Three Handed Contract on the same lines as "Cut Throat" Auction. But they have not been successful or acceptable. Contract is essentially a partnership game and blind bidding for an unexposed Dummy therefore vitiates its vital principles.

An American, Mr. George S. Coffin, has devised lately an entirely new set of rules for "Triangle Contract" which he claims renders it just as scientific as and in some way more delightful than the four-handed game. They involve different bidding on the part of the opponents, since the dealer can see his entire 26 cards at the outset. In many respects the bidding is simplified and the game offers participant excellent practice in defensive play.

(1) The three players cut for deal, the highest card winning. The dealer has the choice of seat at the table, the next highest, who deals next, sitting at his left, and the third player at dealer's right. After the dealer has shuffled, the cards his right-hand opponent cuts them, and then shuffles the still pack (one not in use) while the left-hand opponent attends to the score.

(2) After dealing the cards into four hands the dealer arranges the Dummy's cards opposite him, face up on the table. The Dummy is always the dealer's property, and the other two players are always partners regardless of the final contract.

(3) The dealer's left hand opponent has the first bid, and the dealer's right hand opponent the second bid, before the dealer may bid at all. The Dummy never bids. The dealer bids for his combined twenty-six cards before him. The purpose of giving the opponents two bids is to enable them to show each other their strength before the dealer, with his advantage can cut them off from each other by some high pre-emptive bid. Although this advantage to the dealer may seem great, his adversaries have a greater advantage in bidding than in a regular four-handed game, because, in addition to the inferences of their own cards, each adversary can see the thirteen cards of Dummy at the outset to help guide them to their best contract.

The three players each, bid, double, redouble, or pass in turn. Two consecutive passes close the auction except that the dealer may open third hand. As in regular Bridge, the hand to the left of the final declarer leads. Thus if the dealer's left-hand opponent should win the contract the opening lead comes from Dummy.

(4) In scoring the official count is used with a few special modifications. Vulnerability and rubber bonuses are eliminated, and part scores are not carried forward into the next deal. A bonus of 300 points is awarded for bidding and making game, and a special bonus of 100 points is awarded for fulfilling a contract of less than game.

When playing for stakes each player has a plus and minus column on the score sheet, and each adversary is plus or minus whatever his side wins or loses on each deal. But the dealer always wins or loses double the amount because he collects Dummy's winnings and pays its losses. Each score is entered three times, once in each player's column.

Thus if the adversaries should bid and make Four Hearts, each scores plus 420, but the dealer would score "minus 840." At the end of the session each player reckons his score.

(5) After the hand is played and scored the left-hand opponent of the dealer becomes the next dealer, and the player to the right of the last dealer moves into the vacant chair. To save much moving, by mutual agreement each player may be dealer three or four times consecutively. Should a hand be passed out, the same dealer re-deals. Three completed deals, each dealt by a different player, constitute one round. In a round each player has the Dummy once, and each other player as partner once.

"LOVE ON WHEELS"—KING'S THEATRE.

"Love on Wheels," now showing at the King's Theatre, is a quick-action comedy, full of racy humour and charming song numbers.

Jack Hulbert, the popular British star, is featured in this picture and his famous grin and spontaneous fooling provide something really worth-while in the way of entertainment.

He is seen as a shop-assistant in one of London's biggest stores. His job is a precarious one, for at each complaint from a customer he is threatened with dismissal. One day, however, he astonishes his manager by quitting. He eventually finds a good position but not before the audience has been treated to some thoroughly enjoyable laughs.

The shots of busy life in a huge store are most interesting, and when Jack Hulbert commences to dance and dance in the perfume department and carries on through the haberdashery and ladies' outfitting department, the incongruity of the surroundings add considerably to the fun.

Jack Hulbert is supported by a brilliant cast, including Gordon Barker, who gives a fine study of a Cockney bus conductor. Edmund Gwenn and Miss Leonora Corbett, who dances and sings delightfully.

"THE UNKNOWN SINGER"—CENTRAL THEATRE.

"The Unknown Singer," a French talking picture, is now showing at the Central Theatre.

Lucien Moratore, the famous tenor of the Paris opera, gives a magnificent portrayal of the title role, while the songs sung by him will touch the hearts of every music-lover. The orchestra which accompanies him is one of the world's best known and will delight the most exacting critic.

The plot is absorbing and affords the star ample scope for his special talents. It is one of adventure, excitement, romance and intrigue, with the haunting melodies running right through the theme as salient parts of the action. The female role is taken by Simone Cerdan, a beautiful actress of exceptional talent.

"SONG OF THE EAGLE"—QUEEN'S THEATRE.

All the exciting events during the past twenty years are reviewed in the Paramount production, "Song of the Eagle," now showing at the Queen's Theatre. The story concerns a middle-class brewing family in America who face the years of war, prohibition and of depression with dignity and strength, and welcomes the return to legal beer as a return to the happiness they once knew.

The action of the film is played out by a cast headed by Charles Bickford, Richard Arlen and Mary Brian.

"70,000 WITNESSES"—MAJESTIC THEATRE.

Phillips Holmes, Dorothy Jordan, Charlie Ruggles and Johnny Mack Brown head the cast of "70,000 Witnesses," a murder mystery set on the football gridiron, now showing at the Majestic Theatre.

The story has to do with the attempt of a gambling ring to "fix" a big football game by eliminating the star player of the favourite team.

RECENT WORKS OF EINSTEIN

M. Painleve Discusses Relativity.

IMPORTANT TREATISES.

Paris.

Three recent works of Einstein were brought to the notice of the Academy of Science by M. Paul Painleve, who besides being a former Prime Minister and an enthusiastic airman, is also a distinguished mathematician.

The first treatise deals with the famous extended theory of relativity. "The scientific and philosophical import of which is immense," said M. Painleve, "since it leads us to examine the whole of our fundamental notions of space and time on which are based our conception of the universe." M. Painleve summed up the treatise as a "geometrisation of gravitation."

In the second thesis, electromagnetism is brought within the same laws as those governing gravitation in the Einsteinian universe of four dimensions. A theory of a possible universe of five dimensions is discounted.

The third thesis shows that the diameter and density of the universe may vary.—Reuter.

Italian Air Ace's Record

Plane Has Double Tractive Propellor

TWO ENGINES IN "MACCHI" MACHINE

Warrant Officer Agello, of the Italian Air Force, who recently seized the British-held air speed record held by Flight Lieutenant G. H. Stainforth, did so with an average speed of more than 424 miles or 678.4 kilometers an hour. The speed record achieved by Stainforth on September 13, 1931, was 655 kilometers, or 408 miles.

In May, last year Lieutenant Nini of the Italian Air Force was reported to have reached the amazing speed of 466 miles an hour but the feat did not come under official endorsement.

The new air speed record made by Warrant Officer Agello has been officially confirmed. The Italian government has received congratulations from the British secretary of state for air, Lord Londonderry.

Improvement in Two Years. Thus, in less than two years, the Italian plane, originally designed for the Schneider Cup Race of 1931, has succeeded in surpassing what at the time of its performance was considered a wonderful speed.

Records Listed.

The following are the progressive speed records of seaplanes, the last of which has now been broken by Warrant Officer Agello: Pilot Passaleva attained the speed of 180.155 kilometer per hour on December 28, 1922, at Sesto Calende, Italy, in a Savoia Marchetti machine with an Hispano Suiza engine.

Pilot Cuddihy attained the speed of 302.684 kilometers per hour on October 25, 1924, at Baltimore, United States, in a Curtiss C. R. machine with a Curtiss engine.

Pilot Biard attained the speed of 364.924 kilometers per hour on September 13, 1925, at Napoli, England, in a Supermarine machine with a Fiat engine.

Pilot Doolittle attained the speed of 395.439 kilometers per hour on October 27, 1925, at Baltimore, United States, in a Curtiss machine with a Curtiss engine.

Pilot De Bernardi attained the speed of 416.618 kilometers per hour on November 17, 1926, at Hampton Roads, United States, in a Macchi MC 39 machine with a Fiat engine.

Pilot De Bernardi attained the speed of 479.290 kilometers per hour at Venice, Italy, on November 4, 1927, in a Macchi MC 52 machine with a Fiat engine.

Pilot Stainforth attained the speed of 541.100 kilometers per hour on September 10, 1931, at Calshot, England, in a Gloster machine with a Napier engine.

Pilot Oriabar attained the speed of 575.700 kilometers per hour on September 12, 1932, at Calshot, England, in a Supermarine S. 6 machine with a Rolls Royce engine.

Pilot Stainforth attained the speed of 655.00 kilometers per hour on September 29, 1931, at Calshot, England, in a Supermarine S. 6.B machine with a Rolls Royce engine.

Has Unique Propeller. The principal characteristics of the "macchi" machine which Warrant Officer Agello used in breaking the air speed record this year is the double tractive propeller, which means a combination of two propellers disposed in tandem which turn in opposite direction.

This system has the advantage of annulling the damping of the so-called couples of reaction and gyroscopic couples due to the rotation of the shaft of the engine and of the propeller.

Furthermore the second propeller rotates with higher efficiency in the vortex provoked by the propeller in front.

Cylinders In Two Groups. The cylinders are disposed in two groups of 12, one in front and the other in the rear, mechanically independent one from the other.

Between the two engines is placed the complex combination of reducers to which collect the crank shaft of both groups.

From the reducers depart the two shafts of the propellers, one inside the other, so as to bring on the rear the two propellers very closely one to the other and rotating in equal numbers of rotations in contrary sense.

It is well-known that the record of high speed must be accomplished on an official basis of three kilometers duly recognized by the International Air Federation.

This distance must be covered twice on both ways during the same flight and at a constant altitude not superior to 150 meters. The altitude is verified by means of observers and with registering barograph.

The distances to be covered are four and on each one of them the speed is controlled by official representatives of the F.A.I. The medium of the four speeds is taken and represents the record.

To break the world record it is necessary to have an advantage of nine kilometers over the previous record, therefore to break Stainforth's record it is necessary to have flown at a medium speed of 664 kilometers per hour.

HUGE CATHEDRAL FOR LONDON

Foundation Stone Laid For £3,000,000 Structure.

London.

The foundation stone of the Metropolitan Roman Catholic Church, which is being built at a cost of £3,000,000, was laid recently.

The ceremony attracted a huge gathering of the faithful from all parts of Britain and Ireland, many people having come from overseas to attend.

The cathedral will be one of the largest churches in Christendom.

The ceremony was preceded by a picturesque ecclesiastical procession in which the Papal Legate, other Church dignitaries and a thousand priests participated.

His Eminence Joseph Macrory, Cardinal Archbishop of Armagh, was appointed Papal Legate at a late moment in place of His Eminence Francis Bourne, Cardinal Archbishop of Westminster, head of the Roman Catholic Church in England, who is seriously ill.

During the ceremony, which was watched by 250,000 people, an airplane piloted by Colonel the Master of Sempill flew low over the ground and dropped a message attached to a small parachute at the foot of the Papal Legate.

'ASPRO'

SAFEGUARD YOUR HEART & HEALTH

FALSE ECONOMY with medicine purchasing is a delusion. It is risky, unsafe, perilous and critical. In the interests of health it is essential to shun impure acetyl salicylic acid preparations. As is well known to medical science, free salicylic acid has an adverse effect on the heart — causes digestive troubles — and other disorders. 'ASPRO' has fulfilled all claims made for it. It is pure, safe, sure and gives certain relief to sufferers and conforms with the standards laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia, the guiding authority of the medical profession. Read the fifteen principal uses of 'ASPRO' listed below. The reason why such definite claims are made for 'ASPRO' is because 'ASPRO' is both a powerful germicide and an internal antiseptic, and after ingestion in the system, it is anti-pyretic, anti-periodic, anti-fermentative, antiseptic and a solvent of Uric Acid. Don't endanger your health with impure medicines. 'ASPRO' does not harm the heart nor have any injurious after-effects. Therefore avoid risk by insisting on

For Over 15 Years—The World's Master Medicine

5 MINUTES

There is nothing indefinite about 'ASPRO'. Its service is QUICK, safe, effective and definite. It gives you relief in 5 to 10 minutes and then goes on to dispel or dissolve the cause of the pain, allowing Nature to effect its own cure. Furthermore, you get no harmful after-effects from 'ASPRO' as it is speedily eliminated from the system a few hours after being taken. It neither dopes, deadens nor drugs.

You leave home as "fit as a fiddle" but never know the moment when fate will prove unkind in the form of a headache, neuralgia or nerve pains, or maybe it will be a rheumatic attack. The slightest derangement of your nervous system may make you feel "nervy" or irritable. The sight of an accident may upset you for the day. In crowds germ contamination may place you in the quick grip of a cold or influenza. The best protection for such emergency is to make certain that you put a few 'ASPRO' Tablets in your pocket or purse BEFORE YOU LEAVE HOME.

- 11 It can be taken at any time, in Tram, Train, at Home, at Business—anywhere—everywhere.
- 12 It gives the greatest relief ever known to women at their times of periodical depression.
- 13 It Stops the Ill After-Effects of Alcohol.
- 14 It relieves Dengue and Malaria by reducing the fever.
- 15 As a Gargle, 'ASPRO' is wonderful for Sore Throats, Tonsillitis, etc.

FIRST AID FOR MOTHERS

Most of children are subject to Toothache, Earache, Colds and sudden bursts of Temperature. 'ASPRO' can be safely given to children so affected. It will soothe the pain away and quickly reduce Temperature.

HOW TO GIVE 'ASPRO' TO CHILDREN

Two simple methods of giving 'ASPRO' to the kiddies are: (a) with a little milk or (b) break the tablet up and administer in a teaspoonful of jam. The dosage is: Children 3 to 6 years, 1/2 tablet; 6 to 14 years, 1 tablet; 14 to 16 years 1 1/2 tablets. 'ASPRO' like any other medicine should not be given to babies under 3 years of age without medical advice.

'ASPRO' is Woman's Best Friend

Possibly the greatest users of 'ASPRO' are women, for whom 'ASPRO' has a special charm on account of the varied periodical experiences with which all women are familiar. They surely know just what a wonderful soothing and pain dispeller 'ASPRO' is. Millions of women throughout the World now regularly take 'ASPRO' the safe, sure and effective medicine, to relieve their pain and accompanying physical depression, who before had to resort to dangerous drugs, narcotics or opiates. The understanding woman uses 'ASPRO'.

August 1st, 1932.

Could I, his mother, have clasped his hand,

The son I loved so well,
Or kissed his brow when death was near

And whispered my son, Farewell,
I seem to see his dear sweet face,

Through a mist of falling tears,
But a Mother's part, is a broken heart
And a burden of lonely years.

Empire Marketing.

All interested in the economic development of the non-self-governing Colonies continue to express concern over the possible extinction of the Empire Marketing Board. The value of the Board's varied activities to producers in every part of the Empire is acknowledged by every one who knows anything of its work in promoting the sale of Empire products in Great Britain. Indeed it is evident in the very Report of the Imperial Committee on Economic Consultation and Co-operation, which has caused so much disappointment and anxiety. The Board was set up in 1926 by the British Government, which, debarred at the time from granting tariff preferences, decided, on the advice of the Imperial Economic Committee to make a return for the preferences granted in the Dominions by setting up an organization to promote the sale of Empire goods, including of course those produced at home and in the Crown Colonies. The cost, on an average about half of the £1,000,000 a year which it was originally intended to devote to that purpose, has been borne wholly by the British taxpayer. When, as the result of the Ottawa Conference, the trade of the Dominions was given a position in the British market at least as favourable as that given to British goods in the Dominion markets, the whole position had to be reconsidered, and the future of the Board was among the question referred to the Committee on Economic Consultation and Co-operation. In the report of that body, however, no provision is suggested for continuing the existence of the Board. It is proposed that some of the work it does in collecting and distributing information should be done in future by the Imperial Economic Committee, and that other machinery should be devised for assisting and co-ordinating the work of bodies engaged in scientific research, which is another branch of its activities. No recommendation is made for carrying on the invaluable service it performs in the direct promotion of Empire trade by every possible means, especially by enlisting the voluntary co-operation of traders, wholesale and retail, in committees which smooth the path of the Empire producer. Some of the Dominions may be willing to dispense with this assistance. They may find it difficult in the event to procure, each for its own trade, anything like the amount of co-operation now given by traders to a single official body representing the whole Empire; but that, of course, is their business. The non-self-governing Colonies, which were very inadequately represented on the Committee, are in quite a different position. Important as they are, collectively, in population and in resources awaiting development, no one of them possesses the means to do for itself what the Empire Board now does for all. They cannot afford to dispense with its services. There remain also to be considered the interests of the British producer, whose position in the home market has been greatly improved during the few years that the Board has been in existence. It ought to be possible in co-operation with the Crown Colonies to frame some scheme for preserving the Board's organization for the benefit of the home and the colonial producer, keeping the door open for the co-operation on a reciprocal basis of any Dominion which may desire to share in those benefits. The matter is one of some interest to Hong Kong, and in view of the situation as it exists at present, it is a somewhat reassuring reflection that a British Trade Commissioner has been appointed to the Colony.

Light Metal Invention

The invention of a process for directly synthesizing light metals, such as aluminium, magnesium and Beryllium, is claimed by a Bohemian, M. Erwin Popper, who is described as a former British subject.

The process depends on the freeing of certain gases. The importance of the invention is that it would enable technicians to work to a far greater extent with lighter, instead of as at present, with heavy metals.

$2,400 For "Endymion"

The price of $2,400 for the first edition of Keats's "Endymion" at the Rosebery sale recently, when bidding went up by $50 a time, is a prominent example of how history can reverse a first verdict. The copy in question is an autographed presentation to Leigh Hunt, who declared that he did not think much of it, and, being hard up, as usual, was glad to dispose of it for a fiver.

In 1818, the date of this edition, appeared the notorious attack on Keats in Blackwood's, whose critic (almost certainly Lockhart) wrote of "Endymion":

"We venture to make one small prophecy—that Keats's bookseller will not a second time venture £50 on anything he can write. It is a better and a wiser thing to be a starved apothecary" (a reference to Keats's early trade) "than a starved poet. So back to the shop, Mr. John, back to plasters and pills. The frenzy of the poems was bad enough; but it did not alarm us half so seriously as the calm, settled, imperturbable, drivelling idiosyncrasy of 'Endymion'."

WALTER RUNCIMAN

VICTORIAN GUIDE IN MODERN ECONOMICS

AN AMERICAN APPRECIATION

(By Clair Price.)

With the World Economic Conference under way, the name of "that wonderful little man Runciman" begins to crop up in the news. It is by no means a new name in England, for the two Runcimans are the most famous father and son in the country.

The father is a "character." He is a millionaire ship-owner who came aboard through the hawsepipe, as the saying is. He ran away from home at the age of 12 to become a cabin boy in a sailing ship—in the days when cabin boys were brought up with the rope's end—and now that he is long past 80 he has dropped his hook, so to speak, in the House of Lords. He became the first Lord Runciman last January. A little deaf now, but always with a bright red buttonhole and his hat cocked over one ear, he is what the English call a shellback. To this day he can get up at a public dinner and sing a chanter across the coffee cups with all the gusto of an old fo'c'stle hand who learned his chanter's tramping round and round the capstan.

His only son, Walter Runciman, is the exact opposite of all this, and it is the son who is piloting British industry through the economic conference. It would be easy to imagine the father in a peaked cap and brass buttons or even in a stained blue jersey, but it would be difficult to imagine the pallid features of the son anywhere else than within the huge collar of the Victorian statesman.

The Symbolic Collar.

A certain interest attaches to this historic collar nowadays. It has become as symbolic as the fasces, the swastika, the sickle and hammer. It stands for the Victorian individualism which has built the British State on a basis of trade and industry, for Victorian thrift and energy, for the Victorian fervours of church and chapel with their weakness for "good works" on the Shaftesbury model. In all these respects Walter Runciman is typical. He is a total abstainer a devout chapel-goer who is an elder statesman and a director of banks, railroads and shipping companies, yet occupies a pew with the humblest of the faithful at Wesleyan conferences, and, like the younger Rockefeller, has been known to teach a Sunday-school class.

These middle-class associations made the huge Victorian collar the symbol of the Liberal party. In the case of the hard-headed, north-country, Nonconformist stock from which the Runcimans derive, it was more especially the symbol of the radical wing of Liberalism—radicalism in its heyday meaning votes and schools for workmen, less power to the parson and the squire, in brief, a more drastic social betterment than the official Liberalism of its day had the courage to propose.

A Change of Heart.

The elder Runciman was a red-hot militant radical. The son was brought up from his youth on the wickedness of the Tories. Both were free traders—not because they owned ships (the Nonconformist mind hardly worked as directly as that) but rather because free trade had a touch of the kingdom of God in it, like temperance, disarmament and pacifism. All this was Holy Writ in the days when Gladstone invested the huge Victorian collar with those lofty ethical principles which swept the hard-headed Nonconformist off his feet.

And now note how the British scene has changed. The old party system broke down during the war. At the moment, it cannot be said that there are any major political issues in Britain. There are only the sternest of economic issues, and the pressure of these has been such that Britain—of all countries!—has begun succumbing to the economic nationalism which plagues the rest of the world.

The saints of yesteryear now sup with Satan. Walter Runciman is divided from the Tories only in his acceptance of tariffs on grounds of expediency rather than principle. As President of the Board of Trade, he has powers roughly corresponding to those of the Secretary of Commerce in Washington. His department "deals with private enterprise as such." His purpose is to "leave the industry of this country in better condition than I found it in." He is still a rigid Victorian individualist. His gods are Victorian thrift and energy. That much meaning still attaches to the huge Victorian collar.

By virtue of his office, he is one of the leading members of the British delegation to the economic conference. All the tariffs, quotas, trade agreements and the other visible tokens of Britain's new-born economic nationalism are now personified in his small, pallid face and his huge Victorian collar.

Runciman And Asquith.
Mr. Runciman is now past 60. He was in Asquith's first government in 1908 (he was a youngster of 38 then) and he remained a resolute Asquithian when Lloyd George formed his first war coalition in 1916. He springs from the same Nonconformist and middle-class origins as Asquith sprang from. He has many of the personal qualities that Asquith had and they are qualities which display the English character at its best. He has Asquith's lack of emotion in the House of Commons, but, while Asquith dominated the House by his intellectual powers and his plain, dispassionate qualities of character, Mr. Runciman is perhaps better known for his grasp of complicated fact and for the crystal-clear delivery in which he presents it. He is as full of fact as a balance sheet.

Like Asquith, he extends the same scrupulous fairness to his foes as to his friends—and this in a House which seems at times to have travelled far since Asquith left it. Men like Lloyd George and Churchill owe much of their prestige in the House to their knack of twisting this and slurring over that and swooping on some weak spot in the opposition and flaunting it until friends howl with delight and their opponents are speechless with rage. It was not Asquith's way nor is it Mr. Runciman's.

He has a mind as orderly as a banker's. He could compose an ode to a bill of lading—and with the most complete seriousness, for public life is to him a thing without a ray of humour in it. He could rise in the House to devote an hour's close and masterly reasoning to the proposal of an amendment providing that nothing in line 6, clause 9, subsection 18, section 33 of the act under debate should apply to dried eggs, fireproof china and wool waste not pulled or yarnetted; and when he sat down, the opposition would fill him with shocked surprise.

Spare, thin-lipped and with the high voice and the remote manner of a university don lecturing a class, he belongs to the small minority of men in public life who really know what they are talking about. In connection with international conferences, the term applied to this type of man is usually that of "expert"; and there are moments when it would not be difficult to mistake Mr. Runciman for the Old Master of the experts. But an elder statesman is apt to be rather more than merely that.

VILLAGERS FIGHT
PITCHED BATTLE.Large-Scale Invasion
In Upper Egypt.

Cairo. All the police and camel corps available over a wide area had to be mobilised at top speed when a ferocious battle broke out between the men of two rival villages. One thousand men, from El-Homaidat, a village in Upper Egypt, swept down on the men of nearby El-Ashraf at the first day of a religious festival.

This mass attack was the culmination of a long-standing rivalry. The invaders were armed with sticks, bottles and missiles and a fierce battle followed before the police who were rushed to the spot managed to restore order. Many of the fighters had to be taken to hospital seriously wounded.—Reuter.

IMPROVED WATER PIPES

Dr. Kotewall's Question
On New System.

FOR LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL MEETING

The question of the granting of Government permission to property-owners to install a new system of water-pipes in residences where sufficient pressure is unobtainable when water restrictions are in force, will be put forward by the Hon. Dr. R. H. Kotewall, C.M.G., LL.D., at the meeting of the Legislative Council on Thursday.

A resolution for additional expenditure on the Aberdeen Valley Water Scheme, is also on the agenda, in addition to the first reading of two Bills and the second reading of the Bill to amend the law relating to opium.

The agenda is as follows:—
The Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall will ask the following question:—

In view of the complaints received that water does not reach the third and higher floors of many houses on account of insufficient pressure whenever restrictions are imposed, will the Government grant permission to such property-owners as may apply for it, to have the water-pipes laid first to the top-most floors and thence downwards, instead of from the ground floors and upwards as at present? If not, what are the Government's reasons?

The Colonial Treasurer will move the following resolution:—

That this Council approves of the additional expenditure of $58,487.20 on the Aberdeen Valley Water Scheme during the financial year 1932, which sum shall be met from a future loan and shall meanwhile be charged as an advance from the surplus balances of the Colony.

The Attorney General will move the first reading of—

"A Bill to amend the Betting Duty Ordinance, 1931."

The Hon. Mr. R. H. Kotewall will move the first reading of—

"A Bill to provide for the incorporation of the Procurator in Hong Kong of the Pontifical Foreign Missions Institute."

The Attorney General will move the second reading of—

"A Bill to amend the law relating to Opium."

Dangerous Driving On Stubbs Road.

ACCIDENT NARROWLY AVERTED

Mr. M. L. Davis, manager of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Company of China, was fined $20 at the Central Police Court this morning for dangerous driving on Stubbs Road on July 23. Mr. Davis, who was represented in Court, pleaded guilty.

Mr. A. W. Holland, the complainant, said that the defendant's car came around a bend on Stubbs Road on the wrong side, just as he was reached it from the opposite direction in his car. Only the prompt application of his brakes saved him from what might have been a serious accident.

RECKLESS DRIVING.

Speeding In Caine Road.

For speeding through a controlled area at Caine Road on July 20, Chung Ying San, driver of private car No. 2011, was fined $15 at the Central Police Court this morning. The defendant pleaded guilty.

Inspector Alexander said that he followed the defendant's car from Arbuthnot Road to Castle Road. The defendant travelled at an average speed of 80 m.p.h. along Caine Road, all of which is a controlled area.

ANTI-MUI TSAI SOCIETY

Centenary Of Abolition
Of Slavery.

CELEBRATION DINNER

The centenary of the legal abolition of slavery within the British Empire was last night celebrated at a dinner arranged by the Anti-Mutisai Society of Hong Kong at the roof garden of the Sincere Company, at which over 200 people were present.

The Society also combined the occasion with the celebration of its eleventh anniversary, and presentations were made to Messrs S. C. Yeung, J. D. Bush and C. G. Anderson.

Among those present were Mr. Wong Shum-kan, chairman, who presided, Mr. T. Moffatt, vice-chairman, the Rev. H. R. Wells, one of the first missionaries to take an active interest in the Anti-mutisai movement, Mr. J. D. Bush, Hon. English Secretary, the Rev. J. R. Saunders, Superintendent of the Pu Kong Orphanage, Mr. C. G. Anderson, the Rev. Li Kau-yun, Mr. J. E. R. McPherson, the Rev. N. V. Halward, Messrs S. C. Yeung, J. M. Wong, Wat Lok-bing, Mrs. Ma Hang-fan, Dr. Ma Lok, Mr. Mack Mui-sang, whose history of the Anti-Mutisai movement is in course of preparation, Mr. Wong Kam-ying, one of the earliest members of the committee, Dr. H. Y. Tsao, the Rev. S. F. Tso, who kindly acted as interpreter, and others.

Speeches were given by Mr. J. D. Bush, the Rev. H. R. Wells, the Rev. Mr. Saunders and by Mr. S. C. Yeung, a former chairman of the Anti-Mutisai Society of Hong Kong. A note of progress was struck by the speakers, who were unanimous in the opinion that the Society could congratulate itself on the results of the efforts of its earlier members and the manner in which the present body was carrying on the work.

SALE OF OPIUM TO A MINOR

Two Chinese On Serious Charges.

FINES TOTAL $890

Lau Po, a Chinese, was fined $500, in default four months' hard labour, at the Central Police Court this morning on a charge of "retailing opium to a person under the age of 21 years." The person in question was a Chinese girl, Wong Ling, aged 13.

The defendant was also fined $40, in default three weeks' hard labour, for possession of six mace of raw opium, and $50, in default four weeks' hard labour, for keeping an opium divan, the sentences to run consecutively.

Revenue Officer Grimmitt said said that the Department took a serious view of the first charge as the girl would probably be later charged with smuggling if she were allowed to continue in her present course.

Woman Also Charged. In conjunction with this case, Tsang Sze, a widow, was charged with a "counselling and abetting the possession of opium in a minor," also with possession of eleven taels of opium at 13 Koshing Street.

The accused pleaded not guilty on the first charge, which was dismissed owing to insufficient evidence. Wong Ling, the girl referred to in the first case, said that the woman gave her 50 cents to buy opium from Lau Po, the first defendant.

The woman was convicted on the charge of possession of opium and fined $300, in default three months' hard labour.

NEW SEMINARY FOR HONG KONG.

Pontifical Foreign Missions' Institute.

An Ordinance to provide for the incorporation of the Procurator in Hong Kong of the Pontifical Foreign Missions Institute, will be read for the first time as a Bill, at the meeting of the Legislative Council, on Thursday.

The object and reasons for the legislation is set out as follows:—
The education of adults to priesthood for the purpose of the Mission work having been entrusted to the Institute by the Holy See in Bengal, Burma and other cities in India, the Shan States, Hong Kong and Central China the acquisition of land and other hereditaments and premises for the erection and maintenance of a seminary is necessary for the purpose aforesaid and incorporation is considered desirable.

The Bill follows the form usual in Incorporation Ordinances of this nature particularly Ordinances Nos. 18 of 1927, 27 of 1929 and 9 of 1931.

The new Ordinance may be cited as the Pontifical Foreign Missions Institute Incorporation Ordinance, 1933.

CINEMA "LOCK-OUT" IN JUGO-SLAVIA.

Owners One-Day Protest Against New Tax.

PETITION TO PRIME MINISTER

Belgrade. Jugo-Slav film fans recently found themselves the victims of a one-day "lock-out" when they arrived at their favourite cinemas. The Cinematograph Owners' Association had called a one-day suspension of performances to introduce a new 10 per cent. tax on cinemas.

The tax was imposed in order to cover the deficit in the budgets of the national theatres, which show constantly decreasing returns, while the cinemas are always full.

The theatres already receive considerable subsidies from the state, paid out of a 20 per cent. tax on the gross revenue of the cinemas, which also pay 18 per cent. in other taxes.

A delegation, which has come to the Prime Minister, maintains that the cinemas will be run at a loss if the additional 10 per cent. tax is retained.

The one-day "lock-out" is intended to make the public realise the danger of the film palaces closing permanently.—Reuter.

To-Day's Short Story.

THE BRONZE GLADIATOR

By H. V. Purcell.

It was breakfast time at No. 22, Lobelia-road, Peckham. Mrs. Hackett, who was lumbering noiselessly about in a pair of black pinnies, dumped a pot of tea down upon the kitchen table and smacked impatiently at the outspread newspaper, which was supported by some unseen person. It was obediently lowered, and from behind it appeared the wizened face of Mr. Hackett. He stared absently at the kipper which lay cremated upon a plate in front of him.

"Whatcher staring at it like that for?" inquired Mrs. Hackett. "Ain't it good?"

He was debating this question in his own mind, when there was a postman's rat-tat at the street door, and his questioner moved heavily off in response.

She was gone so long that he started eating, knowing better than to irritate her by an ill-timed display of curiosity. Presently she came into the room turning a letter over in her hands.

"Who's it for?" inquired Mr. Hackett, unable to contain himself any longer, "and who's it from?"

By the way of reply she picked up a knife from the table and slit open the envelope. As her eyes travelled down the page, they began to bulge.

"What is it?" he cried in torment.

Mrs. Hackett made a noise like a burst tyre, and sat down heavily upon a wet dishcloth. The letter fluttered from her nerveless fingers.

Mr. Hackett snatched it up and read:—

"Re the late Eliza Perkins.

"Dear Sir,
"We beg to inform you that we are acting in the estate of the above deceased, under whose Will you have been made a bequest."

"If you will call at our office, we shall be pleased to hand it over to you.

"Yours faithfully,
"I. Fleecem.

ITALY MAY BORROW BRITISH PICTURES

Correggio's Masterpieces
For Parma?

FOURTH CENTENARY CELEBRATION

Parma. A request may be made by the city of Parma to the London National Gallery for the loan of the Correggio pictures in the National Gallery for a Correggio exhibition to celebrate the fourth centenary of the painter's death.

Parma, Correggio's native city will celebrate the centenary next year. The city's picture gallery already has a famous collection of Correggios and the Parma academy of fine arts has expressed to the Ministry of Education its desire that other picture galleries—notably those of Florence, Milan, Rome, Paris and Vienna—should be asked to lend their treasures for an exhibition of the artists' collected works.

Parma has already lent some of its Correggios to London for the Italian art exhibition held at Burlington House in 1930.—Reuter.

AUSTRALIAN RABBIT EXPORTS.

$520,000 Trade In 10 Months.

Sydney, N.S.W. The Minister for Commerce (Mr. Stewart), reports that for the first 10 months of this financial year, 9,745,000 pairs of frozen rabbits and hares, valued at approximately $520,000 were exported from the Commonwealth, compared with 6,537,000 pairs, valued at $402,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Strict supervision by inspectors of the Department of Commerce ensures that only the best carcasses are shipped. In addition to Great Britain, there was a growing demand last year for these products in Canada, Ceylon, British Malaya, Belgium, and France.—Reuter.

Squeeze, and Fleecem. "Mr. Joseph Hackett, 22, Lobelia-road, Peckham, S.E."

"Old Eliza!" gasped Mr. Hackett when his powers of speech returned to him. "Oo'd 'ave thought it!"

Best-Suit Occasion. "Don't stand there doddering!" snapped his wife "Go and put on your best suit and quick!"

"Best suit?" repeated Mr. Hackett. "Whaffor?"

"Whaffor?" shrilled Mrs. Hackett. "To go and get the money of course! Whaffor, indeed! Your collar's in the right-hand wash-stand drawer. And put on yer black tie, don't forget."

Mr. Hackett shuffled up to his bedroom tense with nervous excitement. Old Eliza—good for five hundred pounds, they said! Had she left him the lot? Half p'raps? Well, he'd been good to her—always sent her a Christmas card. More than Tom or Flo had, he'd swear!

TO-MORROW'S STORY

To-morrow's story will be "The Tunnel," by John Metcalfe.

Dressed in his best suit, his mind wandered back to the greyhounds while Mrs. Hackett stitched a black band round his arm. Five quid on Mick Miller for the 6.30. Five quid? What was five quid to a man with two hundred and fifty? Ten quid! Ten quid at 7 to 2 was—

"Now get along!" barked Mrs. Hackett, breaking in upon these pleasant meditations. "And come straight back ere when you get it."

To a man who has been endeavouring to squeeze out a shilling to put upon a dog, five pounds is wealth. To a man who has travelled all the way from Bye Lane, Peckham, to the Strand, planning which is the quickest way to turn two hundred and fifty pounds into a thousand, it is sheer grief.

A tear came into Mr. Hackett's eye as he left the lawyer's office. Five pounds! Five miserable pounds! Five pounds and a hideous bronze ornament!

He wandered along Fleet-street with the ornament wrapped in brown paper under his arm, the £5 note tucked inside the breast pocket of his best coat.

By the time he arrived at Ludgate-circus, however, his spirits began to pick up. After all he was £5 richer than he had been when he woke up. There were possibilities with £5. £5 was capital.

Properly laid out—
He took his newspaper from his pocket when he had settled himself on the tram, and began to consider the night's Calford selections.

Presently uncomfortable thoughts intruded themselves between his eyes and the printed page. What would she say when she heard of the £5?

"You hand it over," she would say. "Hand it over," jolted the tram. The ornament, disregarded, rolled on to the floor with a crash. He picked it up and unwrapped it to see if it was all right. He remembered it well enough, this bronze figure of a gladiator which had stood upon Eliza's sideboard. Praps he could sell it? Then his eyes fell upon the base. The plate on which the title was inscribed had moved aside in the fall and a cavity was revealed. Mr. Hackett felt inside quickly in the hope that this had been Eliza's secret bank. Alas! It was empty.

At Camberwell Green another thought struck him. Where was he to hide the money away from her sticky fingers until he could—well, lay it out? She'd have that suit off him as soon as he got in doors. Better make up his mind quickly. In the bottom of the ornament? The very place! He unobtrusively took the five pound note from his pocket and slipped it inside.

At Bye Lane he descended from the tram. Whistling cheerily, he stepped off towards Lobelia-road.

Mrs. Hackett opened the front door as he set foot on the step. "Well!" she gasped, taking hold of his shoulders and pulling him inside.

for Speed

The all-important factor in modern lawn tennis is speed and yet more speed. Other things being equal the man with that extra speed wins the match.

The new Spalding laminated multi-ply rackets are the fastest and most powerful ever produced. They can be strung to the highest possible tension without risk of warping thus giving tremendous pace to the ball as it leaves the racket.

The Spalding range of rackets for 1933 comprises seventeen attractive models at prices to suit all purses.

COATES AND FIELD WIN

R. F. Luz, the 1929 champion, entered the last sixteen in the Colony Lawn Bowls Championship when he defeated F. Cullen, the 1925 holder, by 21 shots to 19 after 26 ends on the K. C. C. green yesterday.

Luz will now meet either J. Cavanagh or U. M. Omar.

A. E. Coates (Craigengower) and W. V. Field, also of Craigengower, entered the last sixteen as the result of wins over J. J. Basto (Recreio) and J. F. Lunny (Electric).

Coates beat Basto by 21-16 after 21 ends on the K.B.G.C. green to qualify to meet J. Watson, L. de Rome or J. S. Logan, while Field beat Lunny by 21-15 after 20 ends on the Craigengower green. He will meet H. Nish in the Fourth Round.

J. Cavanagh has been conceded a walk over by E. M. Remedios, and has thus reached the Third Round, where he will meet U. M. Omar, the 1923 and 1931 champion.

"BODY-LINE BOWLING"

London, To-day.

The question of "body-line bowling" was not discussed at the meeting of the Imperial Cricket Conference which lasted for an hour at Lord's yesterday. The opinions of county captains have yet to be sought.—Reuter.

The thought that was always uppermost in my mind when I captained Warwickshire in 1911 was "What has the spectator come here to see?" and when I saw spectators I mean the poor working man, I mean the cricket fan.

Miss Scriven Beats
Betty NuthallWhy Winner Was So Often
Foot-FaultedKING AND QUEEN WATCH GREAT
MATCH: COCHET VERSUS AMERICA

(By A. WALLIS MYERS.)

London, July 3.

WIMBLEDON'S first week, "happy prologue to the swelling act," is over; to-day a second week begins. Nations, as well as champions, will now put their fortune to the final test.

The King and Queen, often present on the first Saturday, saw the last eights come into line. The Queen who had spent five hours at Wimbledon the previous day, was in pink and white; the King wore the Guards' colours on his panama hat.

Their Majesties were the centre of a multitude which filled every inch of available space on the All-England ground—a crowd distributed round the various courts that was easily a record for this or any other meeting.

Place aux dames. Saturday's double fault in the first set. Miss it offered no cannon-ball services. Scriven kept a cool head and a high heart in spite of a full-length fall and a double fault which followed a foot-fault in the seventh game.

SPECUATIVE RALLIES. One thought that Miss Scriven's ankle was strained a little by her fall, but if the handicap was there she made slight of it. Her break of six games in the second set was the fruit of persistent steadiness and the introduction of the fast top spin forehand after the ground was prepared. There was never a procession of points most of the rallies were speculative; every stroke had to be earned.

If Miss Nuthall was less accurate in this bout than in the first Miss Scriven's added pace and swifter mobility—especially her power to extract a fierce blow from the deep forehand corner if Miss Nuthall came in—was the cause.

In the third game Miss Scriven slipped and scrambled to her feet to continue and win the rally; in the sixth she recovered from love—40 down to deuce, only to serve a double fault, yet to hold it in the end. She drove so hard that Miss Nuthall had to duck her head to escape mishap.

In the fateful final set Miss Nuthall won the first two games. Her full vigour was restored; Miss Scriven was reacting. A co-ordinated attack on the latter's back-hand gave Miss Nuthall a 3-1 lead. She was three times within a point of 4-1; a double fault saved Miss Scriven. But Miss Nuthall was ahead at 4-2; her opponent was foot-faulted twice in the sixth game. To thwart her now enterprize was essential.

Miss Scriven, hitting two glorious winners off the service, won seven points in a row, one of them a fine smash. Her concentration was proof against reprisal; Miss Nuthall's a little shaken by the lead that had gone. Psychologically the end was signalled. Miss Scriven won the ninth game from 30 and the tenth from 15. It was Paris over again; the aim at the finish did not falter.

WHY MISS STAMMERS LOST. Miss Kathleen Stammers, who opposed Mme. Mathieu, could supply like Miss Scriven, the left-hand drive that never came back; her defence was incomparably weaker. Unlike Miss Scriven, she could draw blood with her service. But she had none of Miss Scriven's stubborn and accurate defence; when she finessed—and it was but rarely—she nearly always found the queen, in Mme. Mathieu, on the wrong side.

Miss Stammers won four games in the first set; they all came early in the duel. The French champion raced—homer with a break of eight.

MISTAKEN TACTICS. It is fatal for any player with a weak wing to exchange drives with Mme. Mathieu; agent on both sides herself, the Frenchwoman can pilot the ball into the winning zone. Miss Stammers must acquire the fanning-art before her natural ability bears fruit.

Austin's Win
Over Gledhill
At WimbledonPrenn Eliminates
Don Turnbull.ALL-ENGLAND PLATE STARTS
ON FOURTH DAY

London, June 29.

H. W. Austin was the third of the British players to reach the last sixteen in the men's singles at Wimbledon, and his match with K. Gledhill, the American, yesterday afternoon was full of interest. Though Austin won easily at last, there was a time towards the end of the second set when it looked as if the match might take another turning. Gledhill is not one of the very first rank of American players, but he is tall, has a long reach, can hit well, and is especially strong in overhead strokes.

There is also a refinement about his play that is not always apparent in that of his partner, R. H. Vines. Most of the Americans this year seem to have developed in an exaggerated form a kind of crawl. They move about the court in a slow, lackadaisical manner, as if all haste and hurry were beneath their contempt. Nothing in the world rouses them up.

Schreuder Scores Six Against C.B.C.

EIGHTH LEAGUE WIN (By CRAWL.)

The Y.M.C.A. "A" recorded another sweeping victory in the Hong Kong Water Polo League last night when they defeated the Chinese Bathing Club by 9 goals to nil at the Chung Sing Benevolent Society's new Bathing Pavilion at West Point.

Schreuder, the "Y" skipper, again scored a glut of goals. He netted 6 of the nine goals in addition to making the openings for the others.

The "Y" forwards, with the exception of Kerr, were on the ball throughout the game. The latter player was badly starved, and received a pass only twice during the game.

Wood failed to keep his charge in order and was too intent in watching the play rather than his man.

Lai Ping-kwai, the C.B.C. keeper, was very weak and was partially responsible for the large number of shots which passed him. His passing out of the goal was very poor and lacked both sense of direction and power.

Tong Po-man was a strong tackler, but failed to get rid of the ball in time to safe-guard himself against the fast "Y" forwards. The C.B.C.'s greatest weakness lay in their forwards who were too slow off the mark and were inclined to dilly-dally with the ball instead of shooting.

Schreuder (4) and Campbell scored, before half time and Schreuder (2), Wood and Campbell added goals in the second half.

R. Goldman refereed.

Y.M.C.A. "A" - H. Angus, A. G. Donn and R. Wood; E. W. Ralston; W. F. Kerr, W. Schreuder (captain) and W. Campbell.

CHINESE CIVIL SERVANTS WIN

Odd Goal Triumph Over Chung Sing.

(By CRAWL.)

A thrilling water polo match was witnessed at the Chung Sing Benevolent Society's Bathing Pavilion yesterday evening when the home team lost to the Chinese Civil Servants' Swimming Club by the odd goal in three in the Water Polo League.

The Chung Sing team time and again were presented with opportunities to take the lead in the second half, but threw them away by wild passes and weak shots at goal.

Cheung Chi-tai, the home team's right winger was the most dangerous man. Breaking away in the first half to be made an opening for Kong Cheuk-chow, to level the scores after four minutes play.

The visitors, were faster off the mark, and although they came to within an ace of scoring on many an occasion, could not score more than once in the second half when they took the lead just before the end to win narrowly.

The Civil Servants opened the scoring in the third minute of the game, Chan Fook-sing averting out of Sun Ping-man's reach to net with a hard shot.

The home side battled hard to get through, but, despite several good breakaways, were held in check until in the fourth minute, when Cheung Chi-tai broke away on the right wing to pass inwards to Kong Cheuk-chow, who netted with a long and powerful shot.

Changing over with the scores level, both teams played superb polo. Just before the end Lai Im broke through in the result of a solo effort to net the deciding goal.

R. Goldman refereed.

CHINESE WATER POLO LEAGUE

OFFICIAL OPENING FIXED FOR TO-MORROW

ATHLETIC FAVOURITES FOR TITLE

(By Crawl.)

SEVEN CLUBS have entered the Chinese Water-Polo League which commences to-morrow at the Chung Sing Benevolent Society's Bathing Pavilion, West Point.

They are the Chinese Athletic "A" and "B," favourites for the championship, the Fukien Club and the Young Companions' Aquatic Association, both likely contenders for the championship, the Chinese Bathing Club, last year's winners, the Chung Sing Benevolent Society, newcomers to the League, and the Chinese Civil Servants Club.

The games which will be played between 5.30 and 6 p.m. in the evenings at the Chinese Bathing Club, the Chung Sing Benevolent Society's Bathing Pavilion, the Chinese Civil Servants' Club and at the Chinese Athletic Club, will not clash with those in the H.K.I.A.S.A. League.

The Chinese Athletic will probably be represented throughout the Chinese League by Chan Sek-pui in goal. Kwok Fung-sing and Ng Wah-chau at back, Ng Kam-chuen at centre half, and Lam Yue, Yeung Man-kit and Chiu Chuk-yau at forward.

This team is an excellent one and combines combination with good shooting. There is only one weak link, and that is the staying powers of the forwards, but as they will be playing against teams with a similar weakness they should do well.

The South China Athletic Association, who can field the best Chinese Water Polo team in the Colony, have not entered for reasons unknown. Another team not competing this year is the Chinese Y.M.C.A., who are also reputed to have a good water-polo team.

Young Companions Story

The Young Companions' Aquatic Association will have Shek Kam-pui, Fung Kwok-wa, Li E. Long and Wu Man-chu to assist them, and should go far in the League.

The Chung Sing Benevolent Society and the Chinese Civil Servants' Club will have yet to play for another two seasons before they can be reckoned as serious contenders for championship honours.

The League should have started on Sunday last at the Chinese Bathing Club, but owing to inclement weather conditions, the official opening was postponed until to-morrow, when the Young Companions' Aquatic Assn. meet the Chinese Athletic "A" on the latter's pitch, and the Chinese Bathing Club meet the Chinese Civil Servants' Club at the latter's club.

The following is the full League fixture list:-

CHINESE WATER POLO LEAGUE

OFFICIAL OPENING FIXED FOR TO-MORROW

ATHLETIC FAVOURITES FOR TITLE

(By Crawl.)

SEVEN CLUBS have entered the Chinese Water-Polo League which commences to-morrow at the Chung Sing Benevolent Society's Bathing Pavilion, West Point.

They are the Chinese Athletic "A" and "B," favourites for the championship, the Fukien Club and the Young Companions' Aquatic Association, both likely contenders for the championship, the Chinese Bathing Club, last year's winners, the Chung Sing Benevolent Society, newcomers to the League, and the Chinese Civil Servants Club.

The games which will be played between 5.30 and 6 p.m. in the evenings at the Chinese Bathing Club, the Chung Sing Benevolent Society's Bathing Pavilion, the Chinese Civil Servants' Club and at the Chinese Athletic Club, will not clash with those in the H.K.I.A.S.A. League.

The Chinese Athletic will probably be represented throughout the Chinese League by Chan Sek-pui in goal. Kwok Fung-sing and Ng Wah-chau at back, Ng Kam-chuen at centre half, and Lam Yue, Yeung Man-kit and Chiu Chuk-yau at forward.

This team is an excellent one and combines combination with good shooting. There is only one weak link, and that is the staying powers of the forwards, but as they will be playing against teams with a similar weakness they should do well.

The South China Athletic Association, who can field the best Chinese Water Polo team in the Colony, have not entered for reasons unknown. Another team not competing this year is the Chinese Y.M.C.A., who are also reputed to have a good water-polo team.

Young Companions Story

The Young Companions' Aquatic Association will have Shek Kam-pui, Fung Kwok-wa, Li E. Long and Wu Man-chu to assist them, and should go far in the League.

The Chung Sing Benevolent Society and the Chinese Civil Servants' Club will have yet to play for another two seasons before they can be reckoned as serious contenders for championship honours.

The League should have started on Sunday last at the Chinese Bathing Club, but owing to inclement weather conditions, the official opening was postponed until to-morrow, when the Young Companions' Aquatic Assn. meet the Chinese Athletic "A" on the latter's pitch, and the Chinese Bathing Club meet the Chinese Civil Servants' Club at the latter's club.

The following is the full League fixture list:-

TIENTSIN DECLINE V.R.C. INTERPORT INVITATION

Lack Of Financial Aid.

The Tientsin Amateur Swimming Association have received an invitation from the Victoria Recreation Club to take part in an interport swimming contest, but have declined on account of lack of financial aid.

This is the second interport invitation which has been declined, Shanghai being the first port to do so. The latter received two invitations from the V.R.C. and the H.K.I.A.S.A., but declined rather than offend one of them by the acceptance of the other's invitation.

NAVAL WATER POLO

Veteran Wins First League.

SIX RESULTS IN NEW LEAGUE

(By CRAWL.)

At a meeting held aboard H.M.S. Tamar on June 8 of this year it was decided to run a Naval water-polo League for those ships stationed at Hong Kong at the time.

In order to reduce the number of games the Committee divided the tournament into two Leagues, the winners of each playing each other in the final.

The first league was won by the Veteran, who defeated the Olympus by 4 goals to 2 in a fairly good game.

The present League had just started last week the results of which are given below:

The following were the results of last week's games:-

Verity beat Wild Swan 2-0.
Cicla beat Whitehall 1-2.
Verity beat Wishart 6-0.
Tamar received a w.o. from the Wild Swan.

Verity received a w.o. from the Tamar.
Verity beat Cornflower 6-1.
The following are the draws for this week:-

this week:—
Wild Swan	To-Morrow
Wishart	v Cornflower
	v Whitehall
Cicala	Thursday
Cornflower	v Wild Swan
	v Tamar
Wishart	Friday
Whitehall	v Cicala

He endeavored to proceed past her, but her stout figure filled the narrow hall.

"Ow much!" she cried, taking him by the shoulders and shaking him. "Speak, can't you?"

"Nothin'," said Mr. Hackett. "Only this!" He produced the parcel. She tore the wrappings from it and began a loud moaning.

"No need to kick up such a row," he informed her kindly. "What-cher expect, anyway?"

"Nothin'," she flashed. "Not from one of your folk! All as mean as dirt!"

He followed her into the kitchen, and in reply to her eager questioning told her what had happened at the office of Messrs. Fleece, Stinger, Squeeze and Fleece, missing out, however, all reference to the five-pound note.

"Ah!" she sighed heavily. "So that's it, is it? Oh well—!"

And picking up the ornament she set it down upon the mantelpiece.

The newspaper had an added relish for Mr. Hackett as he sat that evening by the side of the fireplace. The next day was Saturday, and an attractive programme was due that night at Catford.

Ever and anon his eyes wandered from the greyhound gossip he was reading and fixed themselves pleasantly upon the bronze gladiator.

Once the ghost of a smile played about his mouth. Mrs. Hackett, who was darned socks, was quick to notice this.

Closely Watched.

"Whatever laughin' at?" she demanded.

"Nothin'," he protested, alarmed.

"Fat lot to laugh at, I must say," snarled Mrs. Hackett. "You as ought to be worth five hundred pound this night if right 'ad been done."

"Ah!" said Mr. Hackett. There was silence for a while.

"Stop lookin' at that bloomin' Greenshyn!" cried Mrs. Hackett suddenly, "else I'll throw it out of the window."

"Don't you dare," said Mr. Hackett with unusual spirit. "Fine thing, with poor old Eliza 'ardly in 'er grave a month."

"I ate it," said Mrs. Hackett, bitterly. "It's a highscore and a hunsolt to honest working people—besides being 'ardly decent, clothed as it is!"

"That may be," said Mr. Hackett. "But it's a work of art, don't you see, and that makes it all right."

"Ho! Indeed?" sneered Mrs. Hackett. "Well, I'm going to bed."

She rose heavily and shuffled upstairs.

On Saturday morning Mr. Hackett had a gardening job at Brockley. He left the house at eight o'clock, casting an appreciative look at the mantelpiece before he went.

The morning passed in a beautiful dream. His employer, coming out at twelve o'clock to see how the work was progressing, was amazed to find Mr. Hackett reclining in a hammock.

"What the devil are you doing?" he said.

"Restin'," said Mr. Hackett, simply.

"Restin' be damned! You get on with your work or else get out!"

"Or right," said Mr. Hackett, rolling out of the hammock. "I shan't need to work to-night. You won't be seeing me again."

"Indeed! Have you come into money?"

"Sort of," replied Mr. Hackett, mysteriously.

Mrs. Hackett was peeling the potatoes for dinner when she heard the front door slam. He entered the kitchen with a smile still on his face.

The Bronze Gladiator Missing.

"What you doin' home so soon?"

"Finished up early," replied Mr. Hackett. His eyes wandered instinctively to the mantelpiece—then they nearly fell from his head.

"Where's it gone?" he screamed.

"Whatever done with it?"

She stared at him curiously and coldly.

"What in the name of glory's wrong with you? Anyone would think it was a priceless heirloom."

"Where is it?" he gasped.

"Well, if you must know," stated Mrs. Hackett, cheerfully, "I took it down to Grindlebaum's this morning, and they gave me seven and a kick for it."

"Oh!" moaned the unhappy Hackett, and sat down hurriedly in a chair.

"Seven and a kick," repeated Mrs. Hackett. "Better than nothin', ain't it?"

The words wouldn't come. He stared at her, his mouth limp and sagging.

"Better than nothin', ain't it?" screamed Mrs. Hackett. He pulled himself together.

"Gaw!" he murmured brokenly, and pushed past her into the scullery to take off his muddy boots.

Most of us have, at some time or other, felt a sudden urge to commit a crime. Mr. Hackett, who had lived opposite a police station during his early years, and had, as you might say, grown up under the eye of the law, nevertheless longed to batter down Grindlebaum's window and carry off the gladiator, which was arranged with a pair of shoes, an old tennis racket and a piece of linoleum grouped gracefully round it.

He stood staring through the window for half an hour. The Saturday afternoon Ryeland shopping crowd surged and jostled about him. Stout matrons banged shopping baskets into the back of his legs. He felt in his pocket the two half crowns he had received from his late employer, and wondered if he dare—

Finally he walked into the shop. Old Grindlebaum, collarless and unshaven, with rusty glasses and a single tooth protruding from the corner of his mouth, appeared from behind a second-hand wardrobe and sidled up, rubbing his hands.

"That Greenshyn statue," began Mr. Hackett, cautiously.

"Ah!" said Mr. Grindlebaum explosively. "Dat is fine piece. Dat is work of art. You wait. I get it an' show you." After some difficulty he reached his arm round the linoleum, and, steering it carefully, between pieces of stock, gripped the gladiator, and piloted it carefully out.

Hackett Does A Deal.

He placed it on a chest of drawers, and, stepping backwards, clasped his hands ecstatically, and half shut his eyes.

"Vunderful! vunderful!" he wheezed, "and beaten bronze. An article dat is of great interest, no?"

"Ere, vot's up?" Mr. Hackett had pounced upon the ornament, and was gazing in a fascinated way at the name plate which hid his treasure.

Mr. Grindlebaum levered it from him with great suspicion, and stood guard over it.

"Or right!" gasped Mr. Hackett. "I ain't goin' to pinch it. 'Ow much d'yer want fer it?"

Mr. Grindlebaum frowned and deliberated.

"Ere, I don't know." He said seriously, shaking his head as if confronted with a problem which puzzled even his experience.

He blinked at Mr. Hackett suddenly, and smacked his hand.

"Twenty-five shillings I paid for it, yes?"

"Ere," cried Mr. Hackett indignantly, "You never paid twenty-five shilling for that thing!"

"Never paid twenty-five shilling? What you know?" spat out Mr. Grindlebaum, whipping his spectacles off and stamping his foot.

Then he called all the shades of his ancestors to witness that twenty-five shillings he had paid.

"It is an andee," he whined desparingly. "Don't you know vot is that? An andee!"

"Which of 'em's lying?" pondered Mr. Hackett. "Im or 'er?" He fingered the two coins lying mournfully in his pocket and wondered what to do.

"Owd it be if I paid yer five bob down," he suggested, "an' the rest later? Coming to that—the smiled in anticipation as a thought struck him—"I could let you 'ave the rest to-night—easy!"

Mr. Grindlebaum looked from Mr. Hackett to the gladiator. Suddenly he clasped his hands.

"Do it I will!" he cried. "Write me your address 'ere, and promise to pay me five shillings on each Saturday. Generally I deal not on tick. No I like your face. Oh, yes! Sign 'ere, please."

Mr. Hackett produced his five shillings and signed the agreement form. He seized the bronze gladiator, his fingers trembling to press back the plate that covered the secret cavity.

"Ere, ere," protested Mr. Grindlebaum. "I wrap it up for you?"

"No! Yes!"

"Don't trouble," said Mr. Hackett, brushing him aside. "Only five a step." He was half-way out of the shop.

"Ere," called Mr. Grindlebaum again. "I forget something. Come back."

Mr. Hackett stood still in his stride, and faced slowly round.

"For make the best part of it!"

laughed Mr. Grindlebaum. "I forget. I'll show you." He dragged the statuette from Mr. Hackett's reluctant grip, and, holding it up to the light, peered carefully at the base.

Mr. Hackett's heart stood still. "Oh yes!" nodded Mr. Grindlebaum. "I forget the best part! This not an ordinary ornament. Look—"

He raised a claw-like hand, and with its dirty index finger pressed back the plate and revealed the cavity beneath.

The unfortunate Hackett snatched the gladiator from him and pressed his hand into the aperture—held it frantically up to the light—blew in it—all in vain! Aunt Eliza's legacy had gone! He turned fiercely upon Mr. Grindlebaum.

"Whatever done with it?" he shouted, dancing about like a madman.

Mr. Grindlebaum started back. "Vot 'ave I done with vitch?" he demanded in amazement.

"You know!" bawled Mr. Hackett. "Where is it? 'Ow did you find out about it?"

"'Ow did I find out about the secret old? Yes? Oh! that was the lady vot brought it 'ere. She show me that—Ache, the man is mad! Vot in 'eaven!"

He gazed in wonder at the gladiator which Mr. Hackett had flung into his arms, then, rushing to the door, stared in the direction his customer had fled. He was lost to sight in the Saturday throng of shoppers.

Five minutes later Mr. Hackett stumbled panting into his own kitchen, where Mrs. Hackett was setting the tea.

"Been runnin'?" she asked sarcastically.

He made no reply, for his gaze had lighted on a brand new easy chair standing on Mrs. Hackett's side of the fireplace, which—shattered the last shreds of hope that still lingered in his heart.

Champion Of Protection.

It was a speech of his, delivered in the House before the crisis of 1931, which is universally regarded as having decided the tariff future of Britain. The McKenna duties, which formed the thin end of the wedge, were intended to restrict luxury imports during the war. They were followed after the war by the imposition of further duties in the guise of imperial preference, the safeguarding of industries, anti-dumping measures and so forth—indeed, in almost any guise which would postpone the embarrassing issue of out-and-out protection. During those first few years after the war, there was no subject on which leaders in the House were more sensitive than on this classic subject of protection vs. free trade. You could change your mind on almost any other issue, but there was something in the subject of free trade which made any accusation of inconsistency as embarrassing as an accusation of some piece of bad social form.

While the House continued to assuage its collective conscience by holding what the revivalists describe as testimony meetings on the subject of consistency, Mr. Baldwin's government in 1925 took a very considerable step away from free trade. It re-enacted the safeguarding of industries as part of a general industrial policy designed to combat unemployment through the protection of established industries. The actual import duties which resulted were not of great consequence compared to the total volume of Britain's imports, but they did have the effect of making the subject of consistency a less ticklish one.

It took the black days of the 1931 crisis to put an end to this tantalizing subject of consistency. It was not until then, with the £100,000,000 trade surplus of 1929 turned into an adverse balance of £113,000,000, that Mr. Runciman boldly went over to an out-and-out policy of protection as a means of correcting the abnormal flow of imports. It was a weighty speech, the weightiest pronouncement in the House since the speech in 1926, in which Sir John Simon declared the general strike illegal. It was weighty for two reasons: not only has Mr. Runciman much the same standing in the realm of British industry as Sir John Simon has in the realm of British law, but also he was himself one of the last pillars in the crumbling edifice of free trade. It was that historic speech which prepared the way for the final abandonment of free trade and the restoration of protection in the Import Duties Act of February, 1932.

From that speech Mr. Runciman's present standing as an exponent of economic nationalism dates. In this he presumably reflects the views of British industry in general (there are exceptions in particular), for at the Board of Trade he is in more intimate contact with industry than any other member of the Cabinet.

His Political Career.

He himself seems at times to be neat and precise rather than sturdy and rugged. There are times when he seems to fill the huge Victorian collar with the pale feature of a university tutor rather than those of a great business magnate. Yet he was born into the shipyards, the boiler-sheds and the canneries of the Tyne. He became one of the youngest managing directors in the country when his father put him in charge of the Moor Line (the Runciman fleet of cargo tramps) at the tender age of 26.

But he was never quite like the ordinary type of shipowner who forms the backbone of all his sits in an office in Liverpool with his head full of Russian and distant Danubian freight rates and his been indicated. Coal and cotton are dealt stacked with Chicago opening to him the twin pillars of British prices. Instead, the younger Runciman sat in his office in New-castle with a political career at the back of his mind.

He became an M. P. at the age of 29, and it was taken for granted that he would go into office as soon as figures with the terrifying re-as a Liberal Government came to power.

Along to take care of him. He machine. He can reel off the exact Education and his principal jobs were shipped from Hull to Rotterdam since have been the president of various boards: the Board last month of Education, the Board of Agriculture, the Board of Trade.

There was at one time a suggestion that he might succeed Asquith, father has done, there are men who and there has been talk of him as describe him as a good seaman an alternative to Ramsay Mac-donald in the present government, practices his seamanship is confined But his father's acceptance of a to the skippering of his yacht "dur-purchase last January has now dis-posed of any further mention of in the Hebrides and he does his the son in connection with the own navigating whenever he purple. In the natural course of visits it.

Miss Scriven Beats Butty Nuthall

Miss Round had no great difficulty in beating Mrs. Edwards, and Miss Jacobs, in an all-American match, scored an opening love set against Mrs. Burke.

Frl. Krahwinkel had just too many strokes, playing them too shrewdly, for Mrs. King. Often the English player would score outright with a great forehand drive, she would attempt others by running round the ball. This habit gave valuable time to the German girl to move into position for the reply. Frl. Krahwinkel has the match-winner's instinct for seizing the vital points.

VINES FINDS HIS FORM.
In the men's singles, America, France, England and Australia all supplied a victor on Saturday. Vines was at his best again. His spirit was braced by the arrival from California of Mr. Beasley, his friend and mentor. Most of the champion's stroke-equipment has been fashioned under Beasley's eye.

Dr. Prens, though fighting gallantly, was outplayed. He was not intimidated by the champion's service; he often struck it on the rise with good results. But his heavy build handicapped his chase of Vines' drives, long and low; nor could he recover the drop volleys with which the American events, the son will inherit the title, and move to the upper house before very many years have passed, and the accepted usage nowadays is that a Prime Minister has to belong to the lower house, where the opposition is. It is known that father and son are in the fullest understanding, and it is assumed that the father would not have accepted a peerage without the unreserved consent of the son. The inference, therefore, is that the son has no further political ambitions.

Amazing Thoroughness.
It has all seemed magically easy, and so has the business career which has run parallel with it. From whatever angle you view him, Mr. Runciman was born to success as the sparks fly up. Perhaps his business career has been a more impressive success than his political career, for that level-headedness and grasp of detail which make for success in business are apt in politics to produce the great administrator rather than the natural leader. He is capable of developing unusual strength in politics, but it takes attack to bring it out. He was heavily attacked at the Board of Trade during the first year or two of the war, but attack does not budge him. By introducing what were known as the Blue Book rates, he put an end to profiteering at sea and saved the government millions in freight charges.

What are you looking so glum about? somebody asked a Cardiff shipowner a few months after these government-standardized rates had been circulated.

"Well, you'd look glum if you'd lost a million pounds."

"But I thought you'd made a million since the war began."

"Maybe I have, but I'd have made the two million if it hadn't been for this fellow Runciman and his Blue Book rates."

A few years ago the banks put him in charge of the work of straightening out the tangled affairs of the great Kylesant shipping combine after Lord Kylesant at the tender age of 26.

But he was never quite like the ordinary type of shipowner who forms the backbone of all his sits in an office in Liverpool with his head full of Russian and distant Danubian freight rates and his been indicated. Coal and cotton are dealt stacked with Chicago opening to him the twin pillars of British prices. Instead, the younger Runciman sat in his office in New-castle with a political career at the back of his mind.

AUSTIN AND CRAWFORD WIN.

Austin and Crawford, the British Empire stylists, had comfortable wins against the Dominions. New Zealand revealed her resources when Stedman served and drove against Crawford, but the Australian revelled in the sun-burnt No. 1 court, and was playing all his shots with perfect length and strength. One noted far more speed behind his smashes than usual.

Austin also ran into his truest form. Perhaps Spence was not quite aggressive enough to search him in every cranny. Austin set a fast pace from the start and maintained it, finding the lines beautifully to the end. Only overhead was he a little uncertain at times.

Cochet is still engaged in a little tournament of his own against America. He had beaten Burwell on Thursday; on Saturday he met D. N. Jones; to-day he is to play Stofen; if he survives, Vines will probably be waiting in the semi-final.

WHEN TILDEN RETIRED.

This sequence of fast-serving Americans is not only bracing Cochet; he is back on the system of play, in which his strokes have been trained, that he had used so often against Tilden. When Tilden retired from Wimbledon after 1930 Cochet's lights were lowered; will the reappearance of Tildenesque methods renew his incandescent power.

Jones produced a finer service than Burwell; the marksmanship was better and the second ball often as telling as the first. Had the Cambridge captain been as consistent off the ground he might, with his splendid range of speed, have taken more than one set from the great Frenchman. He had 5-3 in the third only to fall before a volleying crusade which Cochet was now forced to pursue.

Once the set was over the match was finished. Cochet at the net was still better than any player at Wimbledon; behind the service line one missed the penetration of his drive. I wonder if it lies in reserve for this week?

JAPANESE WANT GARRISON AT MIYUN.

Peiping, To-day
The retrocession of Luan-tung is now nearing completion.

Along the railway all districts have been taken over, those still remaining in Japanese hands being five along the Great Wall, in addition to the Walled City of Shanhaikuan.

At Miyun it is reported that the Japanese military Authorities insist on maintaining a garrison, both inside and outside the town, under a loosely-worded Article in the Tangku Truce regarding the inspection of the Chinese military withdrawal from the demilitarised zone. — Reuter.

BLOOD-STAINED AND DESERTED JUNK FOUND

Flashing his torch around, R. O. Ward saw large blood stains on the mast and spar.

During a thorough search, no other evidence was found, the junk being unoccupied.

The junk was taken in tow to Aberdeen, from where it was subsequently towed by a police launch to the Typhoon Shelter.

PERRY "CHAIRSED" AT VICTORIA

The huge crowd sent up a great roar when Fred Perry, Bunny Austin, Pat Hughes, Harold Lee, and H. Roper Barrett, the non-playing captain, stepped off the Golden Arrow. The British captain was carrying the trophy Britain had won for the first time since 1912 and the sixth time in the history of the contest.

A section of the crowd broke through the cordon of Police, and, in spite of his struggles, carried Fred Perry, the hero of the Challenge—Round—against France, shoulder-high.

U. S. EMPLOYERS REBUFFED

An attack on the "Company Unions" system by a spokesman of the Federation of Labour was supported by General Johnson and Mr. Thomas Lamont, President of the Iron and Steel Institute, and it was finally agreed to withdraw the clause.

The workers are thus technically free to choose their own methods of labour organisation, though Mr. Lamont added that owners will still endeavour to on continue to deal with employees through the "Company Unions."

The owners' Code provides a 40-hour week and a minimum weekly wage of $15.—Reuter.
